CITY COUNCIL

Mayor Vetoes Light Resolution And Then New Ordinance is Started.

Regular meeting of city council last night, Mayor Kyte presiding and all councilmen but Robertson present. Minutes were read and on motion of Ahlert the resolution relative to extending the time limit of lighting contract and franchise was stricken from the minutes without objection. After this action the minutes were approved.

The city attorney reported that he had collected $50 from Ewing Shields, his share of damage in the Gardiner case, and the same had been paid over to the city treasurer.

The committee appointed to confer with the receiver of the Seymour Gas and Electric Light Company about a temporary continuance of street lights reported that they had seen Mr. J. H. Matlock and he would continue the lights temporarily at the old rates, but would require that all outages be reported at the light company's office immediately. After a few questions were asked and answered the committee was continued and instructed to prepare contract and report same to the Board of Public Works.

The committee appointed to place a new water plug in the Fifth ward was granted two weeks more time at the request of Bretthauer.

The mayor's veto of the resolution purporting to extend the time limit of the lighting franchise and contract awarded to the Indiana Public Utilities Company was read by the clerk. The reason for the veto was the doubtful legality of the resolution. The veto was approved by the council, no one opposing.

Under the call of ordinances Jackson handed up two ordinances which were read by the clerk. The first ordinance was a duplicate of the electric light franchise granted to the Indiana Public Utilities Company (W. B. Holton) a year and a half ago. The franchise is for twenty years and the plant is to be completed Nov. 1, 1910. The provisions of this franchise will be given in detail in a later issue of the REPUBLICAN. The second ordinance was a duplicate of the gas franchise granted the Indiana Public Utilities Company (W. B. Holton) a year and a half ago. The franchise is for twenty years and the gas plant is to be completed January 1, 1911. Both ordinances were read the first time. There was no discussion nor were any questions asked about the ordinances.

A resolution was adopted designating the voting places for the city election as follows:

1st Ward, first precinct, Fred Miller's residence 526 East sixth street, second precinct, Frank Bush's harness factory.

2nd Ward, Pearl Laundry building on North Chestnut St.

3rd Ward, Mrs. Banta's residence on High street.

4th Ward, H. P. Miller's office on South Walnut.

5th Ward, George Schaefer's house, corner of Poplar and Laurel streets.

An ordinance to appropriate $300 to pay city election expenses was introduced, advanced and adopted.

The assessment roll made by the engineer for four jobs of concrete done under the supervision of the city was read and adopted. Objections if any can be made in four weeks.

Jackson reported that the old second hand store building at the corner of Chestnut and Third streets was being torn down and when that was completed Stanfield and Carlson desired to extend their warehouse north to Third street. This permit was granted with the understanding that the building would be covered by sheet iron.

On motion of Jackson the clerk was directed to advertise for bids for lighting streets as the law required. This action was taken in view of the fact that the lighting contract has about expired.

On motion of Bretthauer the street commissioner was directed to clean ditches over the city that needed cleaning.

The city engineer was directed to solve the drainage problem at the south end of Poplar street.

On motion of Ahlert the street commissioner was instructed to flush the Brown street sewer near Seukle's store.

On motion of Weaver the street commissioner and engineer were directed to look after gutters along Broadway and 5th, 6th and 7th streets.

Council adjourned at 9 o'clock.

Recital.

The Chaminade Club, composed of pupils of Nellie A. Crane, held their regular monthly meeting at Miss Crane's studio last evening. The musical history lesson comprised the music of the Egyptians and Israelites, also a description of their musical instruments. The piano numbers were ably supplemented by Misses Adda Gasaway and Blanche Milhous, vocalists. The program is as follows: Sonate No. 2.....Mozart Allegro Andante

Doris Geile	Scherzo Ballet.....Sabathil
Estella White	Narcissus.....Nevin
Estella Rosenfield	In Arcady.....Ethelbert Nevin
A Shepards Tale	Shepards All and Maidens Fair
Lullabye	Tournament
Flossie Allen	The Rosary.....Nevin
Blanche Milhous	Doris.....Nevin
Adda Gasaway	Violin obligato, Wilfred Geile.

There was quite a large attendance of members and their friends. The piano used was a Chickering Grand, which Miss Crane has recently added to her studio equipment. Its beautiful tone was a matter of general comment.

WALSH ROADS SOLD

Deal Completed Whereby Morgan Syndicate Gains Control.

It was announced late Monday night that a deal had been practically completed, whereby John R. Walsh had disposed of his railroad interests to a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York. Throughout the day there were many reports in financial circles that such a transaction was on foot, but nothing was given out until about ten o'clock last night when a man, who had been in attendance at the meeting said, that the point had been reached where it can be said that the railroads belonging to Mr. Walsh would soon pass into other hands. However, it will take some time to complete the great number of the details connected with the transaction and may be several days before the deal is finally consummated. The particulars of the transaction could not be learned as utmost secrecy surrounded every movement of the conference. The properties disposed of by Mr. Walsh, according to the statement issued, includes the Southern Indiana, Ill. Southern, the Chicago Southern and the Bedford Railway Company.

There have been many rumors of late as to what disposition would be made of the Walsh properties. Some weeks ago Walsh failed to pay, when due, the quarterly interest on the bonds and it became evident that he would lose at least part of his interests, if not all of them. It was said that James J. Hill wanted the road and it has lately been reported that the United States Steel Corporation was endeavoring to get the system. The towns and cities along the Southern Indiana route have an especial interest in that road, and are anxious for the final settlement to be made.

It was learned yesterday that an understanding has been reached between counsel for Walsh and United States District Attorney Sims and no attempt will be made to send the convicted banker to prison until the Federal Supreme Court has taken jurisdiction of his case. The court was advised that it is satisfactory to the government representatives to have Mr. Walsh continue at liberty on the $50,000 bond he gave some time ago, until such time as his case is in the hands of the United States Supreme Court.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS

H. M. Church, division civil engineer on the B. & O. S-W., was among the officials who went west on the officers' special Monday afternoon. The train remained here about an hour while the officers inspected the roundhouse, the freight offices and other property. The train came in here about three o'clock. These trips are made once or twice each year that the officials may keep themselves well informed about the condition of the property and the improvements needed.

D. M. McNamara, traveling passenger agent of the Chicago & Alton, passed through this city this morning. John C. Hagerty, division superintendent of the B. & O. S-W., was in the city a short time this morning.

Improvements.

The outlook for building in Seymour again next year is good. One party informed the REPUBLICAN today that he and his family would probably build five new residences next year. These will probably be four or five room cottages to cost in the neighborhood of $1,000 each.

John Fox, of S. Chestnut street, is having his lots filled which face on S. Carter street, and will probably build some residences there later. Carter street has only recently been opened from the Oak street alley on to the south corporation line and this improvement gives an opportunity for building a number of residences in that part of the city. Carter street has long been a beautiful and desirable residence locality but will become still more so since the street has been extended.

Arthur Spreen and family moved into their new residence several days ago, which was recently completed at the corner of Homestead avenue and Pine street.

The three new residences which have been erected this summer in the Reed-Jordan addition are now all completed. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Fettig and family occupy one of these. Mr. and Mrs. John Cobb have purchased another and have been occupying the same for some time. The third, which has been completed only recently, will be occupied within the next few days.

Now that work on the Chas. Nicholson building on S. Chestnut street is to be taken up again what has been an eyesore there for almost two years will be made use of and will add its testimony to the prosperity of Seymour.

New Lighting Systems.

Fred Eudaly has recently placed one of the new American gasoline lighting systems in the Model grocery and this store is now one of the best lighted stores in the city. The Tabb grocery store installed a similar system a few months ago. Mr. Eudaly has had one of these systems in his barber shop for several weeks and has ordered one for A. Sciarra's tailorshop which was expected here today. These lights come about as near making a room as light as day as it is possible to make it. After the systems are installed the expense is very moderate and the trouble in caring for the lights seems to be reduced to a minimum.

It coaxes back that well feeling, healthy look, puts the sap of life in your system, protects you from disease. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea has no equal as a Spring tonic for the whole family. Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Pleased With California.

Henry Barnum arrived here Monday afternoon on No. 2 from Needles, Cal. where he has been braving for the past five months on the Sante Fe. He may remain here several weeks before returning to California. His brother, Barney Barnum, and wife also moved to California recently where he, too, is employed at railroading. They seem to be well pleased with their work and the climate in that far western country.

MARRIED.

COX-O'LEARY.

The marriage of Miss Julia O'Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. O'Leary, and Ben H. Fox, of Indianapolis, took place last Wednesday evening in St. Louis at the home of Rev. C. T. O'Leary, the bride's uncle. A reception at the Hamilton hotel followed the ceremony. The bride wore an old rose gown. The attendants were Miss Mary O'Leary, the bride's sister and Harry M. Clemmens, of Indianapolis. Later in the evening the bride and groom left for Indianapolis where they will make their home. The groom is a former Jackson county boy and graduated from the Seymour high school in 1901, and has since been in business in Indianapolis. The bride was an accomplished young lady of St. Louis.

Eddie Foster, of Vernon township, was transacting business in the city this morning.

Hospital Buildings.

James Hamer, Jr., was at Madison recently on a short trip and visited the buildings of the Southeastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane, now in course of erection. He is enthusiastic about their beauty, their durability and the architecture. He says that there are in the group twenty-one pressed brick buildings with marble floors. Most of them are three and four story buildings. It will be one of the largest of the state institutions.

THE SHADOW THEATER.

An Ancient Form of Entertainment Is Being Tried in Berlin.

Berlin has a shadow theater which is meant to supply to children the kind of entertainment that can be made much more adaptable to them than any of the plays arranged for their special benefit. The Munich shadow plays, in which the highly artistic figures are arranged by the painters of the city, cannot be said to be typical of such entertainments, since they are designed for the amusement of a small coterie of clever persons. They have proved the most artistic of all these shadow pictures, however, and are doubtless responsible for the revival of the vogue of this really ancient form of art.

The history of these performances in relation to the modern stage is interesting. The first performances of this kind in Europe were seen in Paris when Dominique Seraphin introduced them. They were called then "Chinese shadows," although it has since been learned that these pictures, made from silhouettes against the light, originated in India and then spread to Turkey and Egypt, where they are still popular.

The silhouettes are features of every marriage ceremony in Egypt to this day. As far back as 1557 they played such an important part in the life of the people that there is in existence a prohibition of all revolutionary subjects. Louis XV. took a special interest in the new art that Seraphin brought to France and had a shadow theater set up at Versailles. Seraphin got permission from the next king to transfer his theater to the Palais Royal, and there he prospered for years, returning little gratitude for the favors he had received from royalty, as he turned his theater over to revolutionary subjects as soon as they became the fashion. When his heirs inherited the theater they carried it along until 1870. Then it became much more artistic at the famous Chat Noir, to which all Montmartre flocked and from which sprang all the cabarets. Later Caran d'Ache designed the figures and the famous Fragerolles looked after the music of the entertainments.

How different the present Berlin pictures are may be gathered from the fact that they are primarily intended to amuse children. They seem to have been more appreciated by the adults, who found much more to laugh at in their amusing gestures and artistic design. The speeches were read by good actors and the tales illustrated were taken from the German fairy stories. Whether or not the shows will be successful they are said to be highly artistic.—New York Sun.

GOTHAM'S CAR CONDUCTOR.

Has the Passengers of Both Sexes Pretty Well Disciplined.

Manhattan never worries when some horny-handed thug takes a wallop at a street-car conductor, the Cincinnati Times-Star's New York correspondent says. Most of these gentry seem to have been recruited from the Five Points gang and are as free from the deleterious influences of soap and water as an Eskimo in good standing. Look at their hands, and you think they are Zulus. It comes with a shock to one to recognize that they are unquestionably members of the Caucasian tribe. One of the best things they do is to browbeat women and cripples. That's why a story in the morning papers about some servant of the Metropolitan Street Railways Company being beaten into the semblance of a burned custard sends Manhattan downtown on the grin. The other day one of these iron-handed servitors called on a woman for her fare. She tendered him a bill, which he refused. Then, with an apologetic air, for women are rightfully afraid of car conductors here, she offered him five pennies. "I'm sorry," said she, "but they're all I have."

The conductor just turned his hand and dumped the five pennies on the floor. Then he thrust his oxidized mitt out for a nickel. "Gimme your fare—or beat it," was his order.

The woman flushed and trembled. A large male passenger who sat at her right carefully counted five pennies into his own hand. He handed them to the conductor. "Drop them to the floor if you dare," said he.

Now, the nice way to end this story would be to tell of the conductor making a tearful apology and ringing up two fares. Instead of which he promptly dropped the five pennies on the floor where their five predecessors lay. And then he turned a pair of thick brows on Don Quixote. "Fare, please," he chanted, mechanically.

The large male passenger gave him a nickel. The woman got off. The conductor gave the motorman two bells before a little cripple on the rear platform was able to get off, and glared in at the passengers. No one spoke.

A CITY OF MISFORTUNE.

Use of Acapulco Stunted by Fair Share of Setbacks.

Little Acapulco, with its 5,000 inhabitants, has received world-wide fame as a city of misfortune.

Twice this year it has been the scene of a catastrophe. On Feb. 15, 800 persons were burned to death when when the Flores theater was set on fire by a moving picture machine, and destroyed at a special performance in honor of Governor Flores of the State of Guerrero.

Several times before the city has been damaged by severe earthquakes. In fact, the State of Guerrero is known as the home of seismic disturbances. Its severest shock occurred in 1907.

The whole region suffered, and Chilpancingo, the capital city, was practically destroyed. In 1908, Chilapa, a city of some 15,000 inhabitants, was badly damaged, and on March 27 of the same year, that city was again shaken, completing the ruin of the former shock.

Nevertheless, Acapulco, beset by tropic perils and cursed by a hot, unhealthy climate, is one of the most beautiful spots in the world. Its name, a corruption and abbreviation of Aquae Pulchrae (beautiful waters), rings true. The coast at this point is sheer cliff. Not till the steamer is almost upon it does the bluff-walled, blue channel to Acapulco harbor appear.

At the end of the winding passage is a broad bay, lined with rolling hills covered with thick forest. The town lies on the north shore, and about the hills are rich plantations.

Cortez himself discovered this bay in 1531, and it was then the history of Acapulco began. From there he sent out the expedition which discovered Sinaloa and there perished. From Acapulco, also, Hernandez de Alarcon set sail in 1540 to discover California. And it is a quaint little old place, more Mexican and more artistic than most of the Mexican ports.

Acapulco harbor is one of the finest in the world. It lies 231 miles southwest of Mexico City, of which it was formerly the seaport. It had been for centuries the chief center of commerce with the Philippine Islands, as well as with China and India. By pack trail the merchandise went overland from Acapulco to Mexico City and points beyond. Then came the railroad through from the capital to San Blas, and with it departed the commercial importance of Acapulco.—New York Tribune.

County of a Thousand Keys.

Monroe County is the most unique county in the State if not in the United States. The larger portion of the county is made up of a group of islands, or, as they are called, keys, both on the east and west coasts. The only part of Monroe County on the mainland is the Cape Sable country, the extreme south end of the United States on the mainland.

The larger portion of this land is what is known as the Everglades, and but a limited number of acres are now under cultivation. What effect the proposed drainage of the Everglades will have in Monroe County is not known, but it is doubtful if any large areas will be drained because of the flatness of the country and being so near sea level. In the vicinity of the Cape Sable there are large bodies of rich alluvial land and a considerable quantity has been under cultivation for several years past.

All kinds of tropical and semi-tropical fruit trees grow luxuriantly on the keys and bear full crops of fruit each year. Every key is surrounded with water and the great portion of them have clean white sand beaches with bluffs varying in height above high water mark. All of these building sites are in full view of either the ocean, gulf or bays.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Miles Covered in Dancing.

Dancing is a strenuous exercise. Calculations show the distances negotiated in a night by fair enthusiasts and their partners to be worthy the performance of athletes. Thus the average waltz turn will require a dancer to travel over 1,300 yards. Other round dances in their accomplishment involve: The mazurka, 1,050 yards; the polka, a trifle under the 1,000; the pas de quatre, barely 900 yards. Quadrilles, however, hold the record, since dancing one entails on each of the eight persons in the set the achievement, all unwittingly, of a constitutional of a mile and a quarter long; while dancing the full card, inclusive of the cotillon, at a ball beginning, say, at 10 o'clock at night and winding up at 5 o'clock the next morning, necessitates the taking of 28,000 steps, or a total distance covered of over eleven miles.—Montreal Standard.

The Carnation.

In its original state the carnation was a five petal flower about one inch in diameter, in color a light pink, though it was sometimes seen in a mauve shade. The carnation of the present day is the product of careful hybridization, as a result of which the size of the flower not only has increased to a marked degree, but it has been filled with petals, something like a hundred being seen in a single choice specimen.

A NEIGHBORLY CONSPIRACY.

Mr. Grimes had a large lawn in front of his house and another at the side, and it was his custom to get up and run his lawn mower at 5 o'clock in the morning. In vain his neighbors protested. In vain they complained that he woke them up just when they were sleeping the soundest, and that they could not go to sleep again.

"Nobody has any business snoozing after 5 o'clock," he said. "Go to bed early and get up early. That's the way I do. Think I'm going to wait half a day for you people to sleep off the effect of your late hours, when my grass needs cutting? I guess not!"

Then his neighbors did a little planning. They found out that he went to bed at 9 o'clock, and they made arrangements accordingly. Punctually at 9 o'clock the next moonlight evening the sound of a lawn mower in action was heard directly across the street from the Grimes dwelling. Presently another one chimed in, then another and another, and in less than fifteen minutes at least a dozen were in active operation.

At 10 o'clock or thereabout an upper window in the Grimes house was closed with a vicious bang, but the noise became even louder. It was a bright night, and the industrious neighbors, bareheaded and in their shirt-sleeves, appeared to be enjoying their exercise. There was no more grass to be cut, but they continued to go through the motions. In accordance with the prearranged plan, there was no conversation. The lawn mowers were permitted to make all the noise, and they needed no assistance.

At 1 o'clock the window that had been closed was opened again, and the unkempt head of Mr. Grimes was thrust forth.

"Say," he called out, "how long are you fellows going to keep up that racket?"

"Not more than an hour longer," answered a voice.

"Well, say," spoke Mr. Grimes again, after a pause, "if I'll agree not to run my lawn mower before 7 o'clock in the morning after this, will you stop that noise and let me go to sleep?"

"We will."

"Well, it's a bargain," he said.

A Queen May Look at a Man.

There is an old story current in his home city, Brooklyn, about the late Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, which illustrates how a son is to his mother the most important being in the world. In Dr. Cuyler's case one could not justly question his ability and usefulness. Besides being a successful pastor he was the author of many religious books which were read here and abroad, as well as a frequent contributor to certain magazines.

When he was in England he and his mother corresponded regularly, and at great length, so the tradition goes.

One day a letter came in which he described his presentation to Queen Victoria. Mrs. Cuyler read it with eagerness, hardly able to wait till she had finished before telling some one what had happened. When she at last got through the letter she hastened to a neighbor's house and announced: "I've just got a letter from England, and, do you know, the queen has seen Theodore."

YOUNG FOLKS

Thirteen.

You see, there's Daisy and Geraldine And me—I'm May—and we're each thirteen;

And Daisy and Geraldine both say That now we are too grown up to play With dolls any more! And I think it's mean—

It's perfectly horrid to be thirteen!

They're glad to give up their dolls.

But I Can't see any possible reason why We shouldn't play with them one more year—

(And my Angelina is such a dear! Well, at last I know what people mean When they say it's unlucky to be thirteen.

When I told mamma she shook her head And kissed me tenderly as she said: "You're standing with very reluctant feet,

Dear May, where the brook and river meet; And yet, perhaps, 'tis a golden mean 'Twixt childhood and girlhood when one's thirteen."

Conversation.

To play this game successfully two of the company must privately agree upon a word that has several meanings.

The two then enter into a conversation, which is obliged to be about the word they have chosen, whilst the remainder of the company listen.

When a member of the party imagines that he has guessed the word, he may join in the conversation, but if he finds he is mistaken he must immediately retire.

To give an illustration: Supposing the two players who start the conversation decide upon the word box. They might talk about the people they had seen at the theater and the particular part of the house in which they were sitting. Then they might say how nice it looked in a garden, and one might mention that it grew into big trees. Perhaps one of the company might imagine that he had guessed the word correctly and join in, when the conversation would be immediately changed, and the two would begin to converse about a huge case in which a very great number of things were packed away. By this time possibly the person who joined the conversation will leave off, completely mystified.

If, however, the word should be correctly guessed, the person guessing it chooses a partner and they together select a word and the game begins again.

An Educated Monkey.

The most wonderful monkey that the editor ever heard of is one that a woman traveler saw in Paris. She says that he is so well trained in politeness that it is almost impossible to believe that he does not understand everything you say to him. She met him suddenly on the stairs one day, and the creature stood aside in the corner to let her pass. When she said, "Good morning," he took off his cap and bowed to her. "Where is your passport?" she asked him one day, and the monkey pulled off his cap, took from it a paper, opened it, and handed it to her to examine. When some one remarked that her dress was dusty, the monkey got a brush from the table and carefully brushed her dress and her shoes. When food is given him, he makes a low bow before taking it, then eats it slowly and daintily. He eats eggs with a spoon and uses a knife and fork with skill. He can lock and unlock a drawer, thread a needle, unhook a bottle and polish his master's shoes. He takes great pleasure in listening to the conversation of people and looks from one to the other of the company, as if he were following what they say.

Softly, silently, snow surrounded Shakertown.

Sabrina Sedley's sabots seeming shabby, she sent Sister Serena shopping.

Saucepans, spoons, soap, sheeting, shoes secured, Serena shyly sought some soft, silken surah.

Samuel Seaton, salesman, sensibly suggested salmon shades, sincerely solicitous silks should suit Serena, so sweet seemed she.

She saw Samuel's suggestion sound, salmon suiting seasonably Shakertown socials, so she selected several shades.

Sabrina Sedley spoke scornfully, severely, sensoriously. She said Serena's silks, sealskin sack, sleek, shining satins seemed such selfish silliness.

Sensibly silent, Serena sought Sally Sanborn, seamstress.

Shakertown socialists sending summons soon, some scores sought Stephen Sedley's, Serena's sire's, sitting-room.

Sister Sabrina served supper, Sally slyly serving salads, seed-cakes salted. Seraphic sounded Serena's seraphine, soothing sad souls. Sweetly she sang sentimental songs, Samuel Seaton softly singing some sentences. So Samuel secured Serena, sincerely satisfied.—Youth's Companion.

A Pig Trained to Draw a Cart.

A bicyclist was scorching along with his head down. A little child toddled out into the road and stood directly in his path. The mother saw the child's danger, but was too much frightened to move. Suddenly she screamed, a loud, piercing scream, that startled the bicyclist out of his wits, and he lost control of his wheel, hit the curb, and didn't know where he was for five minutes. But the child was saved; which proves that a woman is not always so helpless as she looks.

IN THE SUMMER CAMP.

Use of the Open Fireplace and the Large Flat Stone.

The simplest way to cook in the open air is over a fireplace made by digging a hole about one foot deep and two feet square, and partly filling it with stones; around three sides of this build a wall six or eight inches high, and on the top place a large flat stone, leaving a small opening at the back for the smoke to escape, Harper's Bazar says. For frying fish, meat or mush, and for baking biscuit, pancakes, etc., this flat stone is practically as good as the top of a camp stove.

Beans may be easily baked in this fireplace by first removing the stone from the top, then, after a good fire has burned for three hours, it is allowed to burn down, and the ashes and embers are cleared away, and the camp kettle of beans sunk into the cavity among the hot stones; a stone is then placed over it, and this is covered with the hot ashes and embers. At the end of twelve hour the result will be a kettle of delicious Boston baked beans.

Large fish are very dainty when cooked in the following manner: First split the fish open, clean and carefully wash out the interior, season well with salt and pepper. Build a hot fire, and when it has burned down lay the fish into hot ashes and embers, allowing it to remain for thirty minutes or longer, according to the size of the fish. When done remove from the ashes, brush clean with a cloth, and peel off the burnt outside; the flesh underneath will be found deliciously cooked, with all the delicate flavors and juices of the fish fully retained.

Small fish are best prepared by first rolling them in Indian meal, seasoned with salt and pepper, and frying them in the frying pan with a small piece of salt pork.

Could Not Eat Excesses.

A school teacher in a rural district left her boarding place suddenly and could not be prevailed upon to return. Her landlady asked the committee to find out why her boarder had left her, and to them the young woman said plainly that the food was so bad she could not eat it.

This explanation was in turn conveyed to the landlady, who expressed the greatest surprise.

"Why," she said, "I don't see how that could be. I knew the bread was bad two or three times, but I was always careful to excuse it."

The Halibut.

In the beginning of last century halibut emigrated to deeper and deeper water, until they are now caught in depths of 150 to 350 fathoms, in deep sea valleys. Halibut capture cod by stunning them with strokes of the tail. The roe of one 350-pound halibut weighed 44 pounds, was over two feet long and contained more than two million eggs.

Not Then.

"Not when he's fishing."

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. A Poor Memory for Names.

The teacher was trying to explain the word "transfiguration." "Don't you remember the transfiguration on the Mount?" she said. "Who was it who was transfigured and changed in appearance on that occasion?" she asked hopefully. After a moment of thoughtful silence, Barker hesitatingly raised his hand.

"I can't just remember his name," he said, "but he was up there hunting and he went to sleep and slept twenty years."—Success Magazine.

The Swordfish Season.

From this time onward the swordfish will live a precarious life, for this noon the first of the swordfish fleet got away, the schooner Valentina, which fitted out at T wharf. Another schooner is slated to start to-night, and in a few days a good sized fleet will be patrolling the waters all the way from Edgartown, Block Island, on the south, to Cape Shore on the north.

The territory embraced is somewhat more extensive than usual on account of the backwardness of the season. This means that the fish are not getting into the more southerly waters as early as customary. The swordfish are harpooned, and many exciting contests have been waged between men in dories and the fish with the sharp point.—Boston Transcript.

A BANKER'S NERVE

Broken by Coffee and Restored by Postum.

A banker needs perfect control of the nerves and a clear, quick, accurate brain. A prominent banker of Chattanooga tells how he keeps himself in condition:

"Up to 17 years of age I was not allowed to drink coffee, but as soon as I got out into the world I began to use it and grew very fond of it. For some years I noticed no bad effects from its use, but in time it began to affect me unfavorably. My hands trembled, the muscles of my face twitched, my mental processes seemed slow and in other ways my system got out of order. These conditions grew so bad at last that I had to give up coffee altogether.

"My attention having been drawn to Postum, I began its use on leaving off the coffee, and it gives me pleasure to testify to its value. I find it a delicious beverage; like it just as well as I did coffee, and during the years that I have used Postum I have been free from the distressing symptoms that accompanied the use of coffee. The nervousness has entirely disappeared, and I am as steady of hand as a boy of 25, though I am more than 92 years old. I owe all this to Postum." "There's a Reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Grocers sell.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

PROGRESS OF CHINESE LOAN

Only a Few Unimportant Details to Be Settled.

UNITED STATES TO HAVE SHARE

Officers of State Department Are Optimistic Over the Situation and Insist That There Is No Reason to Fear the Loan Will Fail—A Matter of Importance From an American Viewpoint.

Washington, Oct. 26.—It is declared by officers of the state department that the present status of the Chinese railway loan is satisfactory. The delay in consummating the loan, which has been pending for several months, it was said today, was not significant. It was denied that any serious hitch had developed. A few unimportant details, it was explained, remain to be settled. It is likely that Secretary of State Knox will make a statement within a few days regarding the loan. Officers of the state department are optimistic over the situation and insist that there is no reason to fear that the loan will fail.

The principal cause for the delay has been the unwillingness of Germany to admit the United States to an equal share in the loan. Under the terms of the original agreement each country furnishing the capital for the railway was to have charge of the work of constructing a proportionate mileage of the road. By this arrangement the mileage would have been distributed among France, Germany and Great Britain, who were the original participants in the loan. As soon as the state department was advised that China intended to borrow $27,500,000 for the construction of the Hankow-Szechuan railroad, Secretary Knox insisted that the United States should be admitted to a quarter share in the loan. This would have the effect of reducing each share from about $9,000,000 to less than $7,000,000. France and Germany objected to the proposed reduction in their share in the loan.

Great Britain at first opposed the admission of the American bankers on the ground that the negotiations had been practically concluded with China and to reopen them to admit American bankers would probably prevent the consummation of the loan. Secretary Knox was insistent, however, that the United States should be granted a quarter share as an original participant in the loan. Finally Great Britain withdrew its objection.

Mr. Knox regards the pending negotiations as important from the American viewpoint, because of the fact that he believes the present loan will be the first of a series of foreign loans which will be negotiated for building roads in China. Great Britain has endeavored to induce Germany to yield in the present negotiations without insisting upon compensating concessions. This Germany has declined to do up to the present time. The negotiations between Great Britain and Germany have been complicated by the strong anti-German sentiment in British politics.

TOOK GUILT ON HERSELF

Negro Woman Confesses to Murder and Saves Her Husband.

Suffolk, Va., Oct. 26.—Placing herself in the shadow of the electric chair in order to save her husband from a similar fate, Vinie Pugh, a young colored woman, has confessed to murder at a coroner's inquest in Myrtle. William Pugh was arrested Saturday, accused of murdering his four-year-old daughter Mamie, but the mother was not suspected until she took the stand during the postmortem examination, incriminating herself and holding her husband guiltless.

A RECORD-BREAKING NUMBER OF WIVES

This Man Believes He Is an Expert.

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 26.—The aged bigamist, Jacob Tremper, under arrest here, has made a complete confession. After giving the names of five women to whom he was married since 1900, he made a statement which took the breath away from his questioners.

"I could keep on telling you of my matrimonial experiences," said he, "but the fact is I have so many more wives besides those I told you about that I can't keep track of them. I have actually forgotten the names of some of them."

Tremper said matrimony was all right if "taken in moderate quantities." He said he thought he was qualified to talk as an expert on the marriage question, having lived with women of all kinds of ages, of all kinds of dispositions and of all kinds of tempers.

His first wife was Elizabeth Wilson, whom he married in 1866. She bore him eleven children, four of whom are living. "I left her," he said, "because she nagged me to death and wanted me to give her more money than I earned."

His favorite wife, Tremper said, was Mrs. Susie Meyers, whom he married at Westminster, Md. His first wife traced him and had him sent to jail for seven years for bigamy. When he was released he went in for matrimony with all comers. He abandoned most of them. They were all well to do, principally widows. Tremper served in the navy during the civil war and was present during the engagement between the union sloop Nereus and the confederate ram Albemarle. He was commended for gallantry during the second attack on Fort Fisher.

W. C. T. U. LEGISLATION

By Which Mrs. Boole Must Resign One of Her Offices.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 26.—Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of New York state, was legislated out of office by the national convention of the W. C. T. U. In addition to being president of the New York state union, Mrs. Boole is one of the national organizers of the society, a much prized position. The convention so amended the by-laws that no national organizer or national superintendent can hold the office of state president. While Mrs. Boole has made no public announcement as to which office she will resign, her friends say she will let go of the state presidency.

Loses Position; Ends Life.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—Emil Hapel, a bookkeeper and collector employed by a credit clothing firm, slashed his throat with a razor at his home and died before medical attention could be given him. The man's dissipated habits had got him into trouble with his employers and he was discharged. He took his life after a spree that lasted three weeks.

Girl Gets $1,500.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 26.—A jury returned a verdict for $1,500 in the suit by Myrtle Hauger, age twenty-two, for $10,000 against her uncle, Joseph McGlone, alleging that while she was employed at his home he attempted an assault. He is sixty years old. She testified that she had to jump out of a window to escape him.

JOHNSON-KETCHELL FIGHT

Interesting Moving Pictures Are Watched by Fans.

New York, Oct. 26.—Pictures of the Johnson-Ketchell fight are being shown here. They are closely scanned by fight fans, who are anxious to see the negro in action. As the Burns-Johnson pictures proved, the negro was entirely too big and powerful for Ketchell. The films showed that Ketchell, at least four inches shorter and probably forty pounds lighter, was no match for Johnson at any stage of the proceedings. It was also indicated that Johnson simply toyed with his man during the early rounds and did not begin to fight at top speed until Ketchell scored a knockdown in the twelfth round. Johnson's final attack after he got up in this round came like a flash of lightning. He shot out his powerful right and down went Ketchell in a heap.

How To Cure a Cold.

Another Step in Aviation.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Right over the heads of a few hundred spectators at College Park, Wilbur Wright reached his left hand quickly over his head, pulled the bit of twine which shuts off his popping engine, and there in midair, 150 feet above the ground, the motor stopped suddenly. Slowly the biplane settled to the earth, noiseless, its whirling propellers making feeble motions, but its wings standing straight out, like those of a bird alighting. A moment later and Wright stepped out of the machine, a thousand feet from the shed above which he had shut off the engine. "I shut the motor off purposely," said the aviator. "I suppose I was up 150 feet." That was the most startling feature which Mr. Wright has shown in all his stay at College Park.

Anty Drudge Suggests an Essay.

Fair Graduate—"My commencement essay is on 'The Indisputable Superiority of Mind over Matter.'"

Anty Drudge—"Why not make your essay about practical things: 'How Fels-Naptha Has Lightened Woman's Work.' After you are married, and have a house of your own, you will find that Fels-Naptha has done more to take the sting out of housework than anything ever invented."

The three great forward steps in woman's housework are:

The modern range in place of the old fireplace and kettle;

The sewing machine in place of laborious hand-sewing;

Fels-Naptha soap, which makes it easy to wash clothes in cool or lukewarm water, without boiling or hard rubbing.

Of these three, Fels-Naptha saves the woman more back-breaking labor, more time, more money, and does more to make life pleasanter than either of the others.

At the very first, you can see how it saves time and labor, but perhaps you'll wonder how Fels-Naptha saves money.

In two ways: First it saves the cost of coal or gas to heat water and boil the clothes.

Then the clothes last longer when washed with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water.

Their fibre isn't weakened by boiling nor strained by hard rubbing.

You can't realize just what a help Fels-Naptha is until you've tried it in your own washing.

Why not begin next washday?

Fels-Naptha easy way of washing in place of the tiresome, tedious back-breaking method.

Use it according to directions on the red and green wrapper, winter or summer.

REPUBLICAN CITY TICKET.

For Mayor
FRED EVERBACK

For Clerk
JOHN HAUENSCHILD

For Treasurer
FELDEN LETT

For Councilmen-At-Large
SHERMAN DAY
JOHN A. GOODALE

For Councilmen
1st Ward, SAMUEL HODAPP,
2nd Ward, JOHN L. VOGEL,
3rd Ward, GEORGE KRAMER,
4th Ward, OLIVER D. LUMPKIN,
5th Ward, WILLIAM R. DAY.

WHEN Fred Everback is mayor the people will be kept advised of all public business. His first concern will be the welfare of the city and the common good of all the residents of Seymour. He will look to the best interests of Seymour first.

DR. F. LETT will make Seymour a good treasurer. He is a man of integrity and is well qualified to perform the duties that belong to the office. He will prove a competent officer and a faithful public servant. Give him your support and vote.

JOHN HAUENSCHILD is exceptionally well qualified for the duties that devolve upon the city clerk. He is a successful young business man and a first class citizen. He will prove an efficient and accommodating city clerk and will be faithful to every duty imposed. Vote for him.

THE resolution that purported to extend the time limit of the lighting franchise and lighting contract was vetoed by Mayor Kyte and his veto was read to the council Monday night. His reason for disapproving it was based on the illegality of the action which the REPUBLICAN pointed out two weeks ago. While the people of Seymour had not been apprised in advance of the council meeting Monday night that the resolution would be disapproved Colonel Harrison and W. B. Holton had been. The introduction of the lighting ordinances at the same meeting showed that they (Harrison and Holton) had been told in advance of Monday night what the action of the Mayor had been.

CURES REMOVE DOUBT ABOUT ECZEMA CURE.

Read What Your Druggist Says About Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

For several years we have announced with our recommendation, that we had found a positive cure for eczema; a simple skin wash, oil of wintergreen compound with other healing ingredients.

Yet we know there are people right in this town who have eczema, and still have never tried this remedy.

We have therefore, arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer of a trial bottle at 25 cents instead of the $1.00 bottle as regularly sold.

We offer this trial bottle with our recommendation and assurance that just as soon as the patient washes his itching skin, this mild liquid will take the itch away instantly.

Couldn't Stir Them Up.

Rome, Oct. 25.—The socialist and anarchists who tried to stir up trouble by holding meetings to protest against the visit of the czar utterly failed, the people generally ignoring them. Deputies Casallini and Morgari made violent speeches at a meeting at Turin, but the bulk of their audience were policemen.

TUBERCULAR HOME

Farm to be Opened for a Refuge for Consumptives.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 25.—Bishop James A. McFaul, of the Roman Catholic diocese of Trenton, announces that he has purchased a farm of 131 acres near Pennington, which will be opened next year as a refuge for the consumptive people of this community. This farm, on which shacks will be erected without expense, will be cared for without regard to race or creed. Sisters of charity will act as nurses. Bishop McFaul was chairman of the committee appointed by Governor Fort to lead the fight against tuberculosis in this state.

WHO WILL BE THE PRESIDENT'S CHOICE?

Supreme Bench Appointment Attracts Attention.

Washington, Oct. 26.—It seems idle to speculate as to the probable choice of a successor to the late Justice Peckham with President Taft away. There are circumstances, however, now recalled which throw some interesting sidelights on considerations that doubtless will play a part in helping Mr. Taft to make up his mind in this most important matter.

Nearly all the men who are familiar with Mr. Taft's views of the subject of judicial appointments are of the opinion were it not for certain prevailing conditions, the President's selection would be Judge Horace H. Lurton of Tennessee, Democrat, who is judge of the Sixth federal district. It is now related that when Justice Brown retired from the supreme bench and President Roosevelt wanted to appoint Mr. Taft to the vacancy, the latter followed up his declaration by recommending Judge Lurton. Mr. Roosevelt gave consideration to Judge Lurton's qualifications, which were of the very highest from a judicial standpoint, but ended in the appointment of William Henry Moody of Massachusetts, then attorney general. With this attitude of Mr. Taft's in mind, observers here would be inclined to say off-hand that Judge Lurton will succeed to the vacancy caused by Justice Peckham's death were it not for two deterrent reasons. In the first place, Judge Lurton is sixty-two years old, which in itself is regarded as a great drawback; and in the second, his appointment would give the supreme bench three justices from the same judicial circuit. The others are Justices Harlan and Day.

THE BIGGEST PHOTOGRAPH

Woodmen of the World Have Their Pictures Taken.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—The largest number of people ever posed for a single photograph, so far as is known here, was the crowd of Woodmen of the World, which assembled on the steps and in front of the Soldiers and Sailors' monument Sunday afternoon. There were 3,500 persons in the crowd. On the upper steps were 800 women. Below and in front of the women were about 2,000 candidates that were to be initiated into the order. The Woodmen had a big time here Sunday, about 20,000 being in the city.

Will Ask a New Trial.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 26.—George Timberlake, the poolroom proprietor, who was convicted Saturday of running a "blind tiger" because of the sale of "Egyptian malt extract" at his place of business and was sentenced to serve thirty days in jail and pay a fine of $50, is still out on bond, pending the hearing of a motion for a new trial. Every effort is being made to save Timberlake from going to jail, but it is generally thought by those that have followed the case that he will have to serve his jail sentence.

A Chance for Recovery.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Evelyn Short, the chorus girl shot here Sunday by her husband, William H. Short, who afterward committed suicide, is in a serious condition, but has a fighting chance to recover. Dr. John R. Wellington, professor of surgery at the George Washington university, removed two bullets from Mrs. Short. Dr. Wellington said that if Mrs. Short held her own for a couple of days she would recover, but her condition was critical. Dr. Wellington was of the opinion that her left lung had been injured, but he was not certain. Mrs. Mary Lewis, mother of the girl, whose stage name is Evelyn Howard, has reached here and is at her daughter's bedside.

SMITHY SONG.

When I am half a-dreaming,
And only half asleep;
When daylight's grayest gleaming
Gins through the blinds to peep,
Oh, then I hear the dinging,
Of the smithy hammers ringing.
Ching, ching, ching, ching,
Ching, ching, ching, ching.

At eve when I'm returning,
From labors of the day,
Their forges yet are burning,
And still their hammers play;
And oft the smiths are singing,
To that measured, merry ringing.
Ching, ching, ching, ching,
Ching, ching, ching, ching.

Often with rhythmic bending
Of bodies to and fro,
They toll in couples, sending
The sparks out, blow on blow;
One hammer always swinging,
The while the other's ringing,
Ching, ching, ching, ching,
Ching, ching, ching, ching.

O merry anvils sounding
All day till set of sun!
It is by steady pounding
That noblest tasks are done,
By sturdy blows and swinging,
That keeps the world a-ringing,
Ching, ching, ching, ching,
Ching, ching, ching, ching.

—George Horton

THE ELEVENTH HOUR

"I am not at home to anyone, Jenks."

"Yes, sir. Shall I take tea into the library, sir?"

"No," was the curt answer. The door of the library was closed with a decisive hand and locked.

He crossed over to the fireplace and stood for a few minutes leaning on the mantelpiece, with his haggard eyes staring down into the recess of the glowing coal. Then he seated himself at the writing table, and for the next ten minutes there was no sound but the tearing of papers. He wrote two letters, both equally brief, and addressed one to his wife and the other to his lawyers and placed them before him, without a pause, he opened a little drawer and brought out a small revolver. He did pause then, and moving his head took a slow survey of the room. The hand pointed to five minutes to 5.

"NOT CROSS WITH ME?"

A grim smile flitted over his face. "I will wait until 5," he said aloud. Four minutes to the hour. Three minutes. Two. Eternity swung in sight—the portals of death were open when someone knocked with a boldness that demanded entrance.

"What do you want? Who is it?"

"It's me, father—Doll," said a clear, childish voice.

"Go away, Doll," he said thickly. "Go to Miss Carter, Doll—I'm busy."

"But Miss Carter's gone to a wedding and she won't be home till 7, and it's dreadfully lonely."

"I can't see you now."

"Not when it's my birthday?" indignantly.

In spite of everything he could not withstand her. He must let her in for a minute and then send her away. He slipped the revolver into his drawer again and opened the door.

"Oh, daddy, how cold you are; and yet—peeping past him—"you have got a lovely fire. Darling, are you cross, or not well?"

"A bit of both, perhaps, Doll."

"Not cross with me?"

"No, Doll, no."

"You were lonely like me, weren't you? And you wanted me—really?"

"Old woman, I can't let you stay here—this evening."

"Are you very busy, darling?"

"Yes."

She gave a deep sigh.

"It was dreadfully lonely upstairs," she began apologetically; "I don't care two pins about Miss Carter being away, but it's—my birthday, and—and—tragically—"you never wished me any happy returns."

"I am a brute, Doll," he said unsteadily.

He took her little round chin in his fingers and looked down into her honest eyes—replicas of her lovely mother's, but with a depth, a soul in them that had never shone in the sparkling orbs of the fashionable beauty. Now as Doll's eyes met his he flinched before them, for their pure glance seemed to reach the recess of his guilty soul.

"Ten to-day, are you? Getting quite an old lady," with a forced smile. "Good angels guard you, sweetheart, for many years—happy years."

"Father, let me have tea with you—it would be a perfectly glorious birthday party. Say yes, do."

"Very well," he said quietly. "Have your own way, Doll."

She gave a little ecstatic scream and flew into the hall like a radiant white bird, too important to ring.

"Jenks, Jenks! I am going to have tea with father! Bring it to the library directly, please, and the cake!"

She was back again, all movement and vivacity. The man from the chair where he had thrown himself could not take his haggard eyes from her—she seemed the very embodiment of life.

And after the tea was over he could not get rid of her without absolute sternness.

"Do you remember last birthday, darling? I was 9, and mummy gave a ball. She promised me one this birthday, but she had to go to the La-touches, you know. Mummy is away a great lot," she said with a little regretful sigh.

"And you are very disappointed to be done out of your party, old woman?"

"Not very," said Doll stoutly. "Next year mummy is sure to be at home, she says so. And she sent me this. Isn't she a darling, sweet mummy?"

She opened a little gold locket attached to a slender chain round her neck and showed him the charming, smiling face of her mother.

He took it in his hand and looked at it long and intently. To-morrow those gay blue eyes would be clouded—that haughtily poised head abased with his dishonor. Well, he thought bitterly, she had had her hand in it. They had never run well together—she had gone her own way and he his. Once things might have been different—was it his fault or hers? He closed the locket with a little snap and let it fall again on Doll's breast.

"And this is her letter—look darling. I'll read it to you: 'So sorry, my sweet Doll, to be away on your birthday—but this is an old engagement, you know, and Lady Latouche would not let me off. Next birthday—indeed, when I return—we must make up for it. I am sending you something to console you. I hope my Doll is a good little girl and does what Miss Carter tells her. Take good care of father.'"

"And I am, aren't I?" Doll broke off to say.

"Yes, Doll, yes, old woman. You—you would miss me a bit if—supposing that I was lost, now?"

"Do men ever get lost?"

"Often, Doll."

"Then I would die," said Doll, tragically.

"Nonsense! Mothers always count for more, don't they?" he persisted.

She pressed round his face and looked at him critically.

"Do they—always?" she whispered.

"Mostly, Doll."

"But sometimes you—they could love the fathers just a wee quarter of an inch more, couldn't they?"

He considered the question, while she watched him anxiously.

"They might sometimes, Doll."

"It wouldn't be wicked?"

"No, of course not."

She gave a deep sigh of relief.

He put his arms round the little warm body, and pressed her close to him. And as he held her there a sudden love of life—a remembrance of all the best and highest of the life he had so basely ill-used—came back and stirred his pulses with gladness and pain.

He closed his eyes dizzily, and leaned against Doll's shoulder. How near had been Death—and Doll had come between them! He reviewed the mad acts of the last few days—the maddest acts of his spoiled life. He had dishonored the name that generations of good-living men had transmitted to him. That very afternoon—was it only this afternoon or centuries ago?—his lawyers had begged him to pull in, to retrench. They had asked him to go abroad until they could settle his submerged affairs. They had sworn that if he would promise them to give up his mad gambling they would be able yet in time to save an honored name—an honored house. And what had his answer been? He had flung away from them with a laugh. "Let my name and place go. My whole existence has been a mistake. I shall go to the devil my own way."

And then in the place of Death and dishonor had come—Doll. He was alive, thank God! Thank God!

"Doll, darling, wise old woman, did you ever turn over a new leaf?"

"Lots," said Doll promptly.

"Well, I've turned over one, all the leaves in my book are stained but this one, but I am going to keep this clean. And, Doll, to-morrow you and I are going in search of the very loveliest birthday present that we can find in the whole of London. But I have given you one to-night, dear."

"What?" asked Doll eagerly and puzzled.

He stooped down and kissed her, and she hugged him gleefully, for she thought his kiss was the gift, but he knew it was his life.—London Opinion.

BIRTHPLACE OF TITIAN.

Two Small, Low, Dark Rooms, Un-suggestive of Inspiration.

We interviewed the padrone about going to Pieve de Cadore, a quaint little village on the top of a hill, famous at Titian's birthplace, about two miles from Tai, by a very steep road, says Mms. Waddington in Scribner's. If it had been fine we should have walked there, but the road was transferred into a running stream and it seemed wiser to take a carriage. A drive of fifteen minutes brought us to Pieve. The carriage stopped in the middle of the Piazza Tiziano, under Titian's statue, and the driver asked what we wanted to do. It had begun to rain again hard, but we scrambled out from under the dirty, smelly hood, and, carrying umbrellas, started for Titian's house, telling the driver to wait for us at the Hotel al Progresso.

The village is small. Some rather large stone houses, which are dignified with the name of "palazzi." Titian's house didn't say much to us. Two small, low, dark rooms. One can't imagine how the boy could have had inspiration or visions of his splendid coloring in such surroundings, but one of the rooms, they told us, was his studio.

However, he was taken to Venice to study when he was only 10 years old, so it was only his first childish years that were spent in Pieve. Some people lived in the house—a barber, I think. They showed us all over the rooms and said a great many persons came to see them—principally English. We went on to the church—the oldest in Cadore. There were several interesting paintings—two by Titian, a Madonna and saints—and others by members of his family, the Vecellios. There are still Vecellios in the village—one sees the names quite often. The butcher, cobbler and grocer are all Vecellios. There is, of course, too, an Albergo and a Cafe Tiziano. All the pictures had the gorgeous coloring of Titian and the Venetian school of that time. The museum is next to the church, with various interesting relics of Titian. Some sketches and some letters written by him to great personages—also many of his own. He always remained in touch with his native place and came back to it very often—wanted to come home to die when he was 99 years old and the plague was raging in Venice. He tried to get away, but no one was allowed to leave the doomed city. He was seized with the dreadful malady and died practically alone, his servants having already succumbed to the plague. There must be a magnificent view from the terrace, but that we shall only know from postal cards or descriptions.

READY TO BUILD.

In the spring of 1840, when Louisa Alcott, the author of Little Women, was 9 years old, her father and mother moved from Boston to Concord, Mass. F. B. Sanborn, who has written a "Monograph upon Bronson Alcott," tells of the strict economy of this household, and of their unflinching readiness to help others less fortunate than themselves. He quotes from a letter written by Mrs. Alcott's cousin, who visited the family at this time.

Mrs. Alcott wanted comfort and counsel; for, although cheerful and uncomplaining, things had got pretty low. She told me of the miserable, poor woman in her neighborhood who had just lost a drunken husband, and was in a poor hovel with four children; and she had been aiding her, in their small way, to a little meal, and encouraging her to have a good heart and keep out of the workhouse, and had interested other neighbors in her behalf.

She said it seemed as if this poor family had been brought to her notice to show her how much better her own situation was, and to give a change to her feelings by looking about, and doing what she could to assist her.

I went with her one day to see this family. In the course of the visit the woman mentioned Mr. Alcott.

"I did not know he had been to see you."

"Oh, yes," she responded, "he was here yesterday and the day before, and saved up some wood for me that had been sent me. I had engaged a man to saw it for me, and did some sewing for his wife to pay for it."

Said Mrs. Alcott, "Then Mr. Alcott's saving it did not do you much good?"

"Oh, yes! They said they had as lief give me the money for the sewing; so I had that to buy some meal."

While I was at Mr. Alcott's of course I saw no meat, nor butter, nor cheese, and only coarse brown sugar, bread, potatoes, apples, squash and simple puddings. I was obliged to have tea occasionally; but except for that I lived as they did.

The Alcotts had just begun to do with two meals a day, that the children might have the pleasure of carrying once a week a basket of something from their humble savings to the poor family.

"Aye," said the caddy, "but ye could bade McGregor noo."

"Do you think so?" exclaimed the gratified visitor, well aware of the McGregor prowess.

"Aye," drawled the caddy, "McGregor's deld."—Tit-Bits.

OLD-FASHIONED MOTHER.

Neither Follies of Fashion Nor Social Dolours Worry Her.

There aren't as many old-fashioned mothers nowadays, just as there aren't as many middle-aged women. Our mothers are very dear, no doubt, and very pretty and lovable. And of course they are tremendously fond of their children, and their children are tremendously fond of them. But somehow or other many of them aren't like those gentle mothers of yesterday. And it is only once in a while that we meet one of the real old-fashioned kind.

She is not at all interested in what is "being worn," this old-fashioned mother, and she has a serene disregard for "what people say." She seems just to be living her gentle, strong, wholesome life for her family and not to care at all whether clothes and persons and ideas are "fashionable" or not. She never massages her face to keep the wrinkles away or has her hair marceled or chooses corsets that will give her "youthful lines," and yet, if she ever chances to be among any of these ultra-modern women who refuse to be middle-aged, it is the old-fashioned mother who is indeed the most distinguished-looking of them all.

Although she has never won a prize at a bridge tournament or driven a four-in-hand at the horse show or entertained in her box during the opera season, her life has been by no means dull nor uneventful. The children have always required a great deal of care, and there have been some stormy seasons through which she has had to steer the family boat herself. When times were hard and things had gone to pieces in the panic, and her husband's health had given way, she took charge of affairs, as a matter of course. The business fell into her hands for a while, and she set it all on its feet again; a troublesome business it was, too, although she never talked about it nor seemed to regard transmitted by an electric cable. The supporting balloon is to be cylindrical in shape, of semi-rigid construction, 200 feet long and 33 feet in diameter. It rests lightly against the cables on either side, channelled wheels attached to the framework of the balloon forming the contact, the cables being suspended at the proper height by towers. The passenger car is to be attached below.

A company has been formed to construct a line on this principle from the railway station at Marburg to Freuenberg, an elevation five miles distant and 1,200 feet above the town. The estimated cost is $28,000 a mile for a double cable line. An important economical feature is the prospect that the cost of maintenance and transportation on the line will be only about 3 per cent of the corresponding expense on an ordinary railroad. It is believed that a speed of 125 miles an hour can be safely made on the balloon trolley.

The Same Dimensions.

The bride-to-be had the air of one who is unreconciled to the existing state of affairs. "Can't we take a wedding trip, as we'd planned?" she asked, plaintively.

"Not just now," said the young man, "on account of my partner's illness."

"I thought it would be such fun, taking that six days' journey in the cars!" she sighed.

"Well, now, see here," said the young man. "If we take the flat I looked at yesterday, it'll be just the same as living in the parlor-car stateroom, except that the scenery won't change."

Dividing His Points.

"Say, maw, do I look like you?"

"Why, yes, Willie, I think there is a resemblance. Why do you ask?"

"Cause, when Mr. Pityon laid his cigar down on the porch rail, I took it up an' smoked it, an' he said I had your eyes, maw, an' your nose, an' your chin—an' paw's nerve!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

She Meant Professionally.

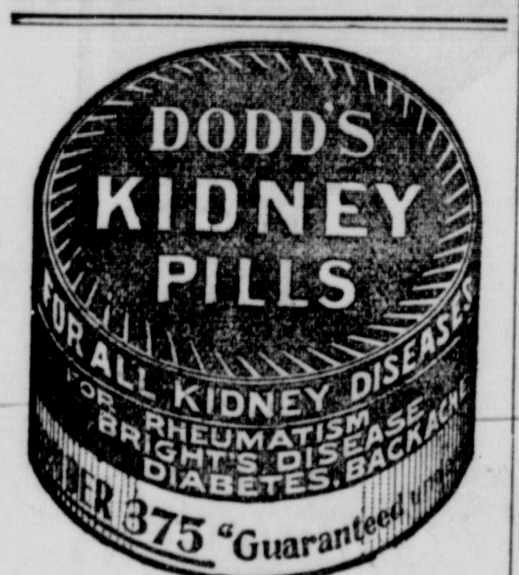

As the young man caressed the cheek of his lady love she drew away hastily.

"I think," she said indignantly, "you had better see father first."

"Why, what do you mean?" asked the perplexed lover.

"Father," she replied, as she nursed her cheek, "is a barber."—Success Magazine.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM... it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Opening of Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in South Dakota

Registration Dates, Oct. 4 to 23, inclusive.

The General Land Office at Washington has designated Le Beau and Aberdeen, S. Dak., on the Minneapolis & St. Louis R. R. as registration points.

Le Beau, which is the Missouri River terminus of the Minneapolis & St. Louis R. R., is located on the Missouri River, opposite the Reservation, and is the nearest railroad station to three-fifths of the land.

Aberdeen, the other registration point, is the chief city in northern South Dakota.

These points are reached best by the Iowa Central and Minneapolis & St. Louis R. R. lines.

There will be about 14,000 quarter sections allotted to settlers. The land lays well for farming over most of the reservation. The soil is a light loam and is very fertile. It is similar to that in the counties east of the River, where the land sells from $25.00 to $30.00 per acre. Lignite coal is found over a great part of the reservation.

Who May Secure a Homestead—Under the homestead laws of the United States, any person, male or female who is not the owner of more than 160 acres of land in any state or territory, who is a native born citizen of the United States, or has been naturalized, or declared his intention to become a naturalized citizen of the United States (i. e., one who has taken out his first papers of citizenship), who is over the age of 21 years or the head of a family, may make a homestead entry of not exceeding 160 acres of any of the unoccupied lands of the United States.

Paid One Cent Tax.

What is undoubtedly the smallest tax assessment ever paid on real estate in this city was handed in recently in the Bronx office of the department of taxes and assessments, 3d avenue and 177th street, when Mrs. Mary A. Bennett paid 1 cent as taxes on property at the corner of Prospect avenue and Garden street.

The rebate clerk, Matthew A. Huson, took the tax bill without glancing at it and prepared to figure out the rebate allowed on taxes paid this month. When he looked at the amount he quickly decided that no rebate could be allowed, and he gave Mrs. Bennett a regular receipt.

Assessed on the tax books as block No. 3100, lot No. 24, the assessment valuation is the same as the amount of taxes collected, it being impossible to collect a smaller amount.

This small piece of city real estate is triangular in shape, the figures on the assessment books being given as 2.98x1.12x2.77 feet, the strip, being the result of cutting through and widening Prospect avenue, the latter proceedings taking all of the property owned by Mrs. Bennett except this remaining triangular bit.—New York Herald.

The effect of the new Canadian law on cigarette smoking by boys is shown in the trade returns. Although 370,000,000 cigarettes were smoked in Canada since the first of the year, most of them being made in the Dominion, the number shows a decline of 39,000,000 on the figures for the preceding twelve months. The results are more striking when it is remembered that the law was in force for only eight months of the year. It forbids the sale or gift of cigarettes or cigarette material to boys of 16 or less under penalties of from $10 to $100.

An eight-inch disk of cardboard revolved on the shaft of an electric motor of highest speed gets stiff, owing to the rotary tension, which makes it behave like metal, and it can no longer be bent. Centrifugal force does many other strange things. Among others, when a small chain is looped around a high-speed rotary drum the chain can be shoved off the drum to the ground, where it bounces up, and when struck acts like a ring of solid metal.

BABY'S WATERY ECZEMA

Itched and Scratched Until Blood Ran—$50 Spent on Useless Treatments—Disease Seemed Incurable—Cured by Cuticura for $1.50.

"When my little boy was two and a half months old he broke out on both cheeks with eczema. It was the itchy, watery kind and we had to keep his little hands wrapped up all the time, and if he would happen to get them uncovered he would claw his face till the blood streamed down on his clothing. We called in a physician at once, but he gave an ointment which was so severe that my babe would scream when it was put on. We changed doctors and medicines until we had spent fifty dollars or more and baby was getting worse. I was so worn out watching and caring for him night and day that I almost felt sure the disease was incurable. But finally reading of the good results of the Cuticura Remedies, I determined to try them. I can truthfully say I was more than surprised, for I bought only a dollar and a half's worth of the Cuticura Remedies (Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills), and they did more good than all my doctors' medicines I had tried, and in fact entirely cured him. His face is perfectly clear of the least spot or scar of anything. Mrs. W. M. Comer, Burnt Cabins, Pa., Sept. 15, 1908."

Have Heat Brought To You

When your bed-room, bath-room or dining room is chilly, you may have heat brought to you in just the degree you desire. It is easy when you have a

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

available. Place the heater where the cold is most annoying, strike a match.

No fuss—no flurry—no smell—and, above all, no smoke, even though you turn the wick as high as it will go.

The temperature runs up quickly. In ten minutes the average sized room glows with cheer and comfort that genial heat brings—the heat that is smokeless and odorless.

Automatic Smokeless Device which automatically locks and absolutely prevents smoke, by keeping the wick out of the smoke zone, is on the Perfection only.

The solid brass font holds four quarts, which gives a full-head flame for nine hours.

Flame burns from side of wick instead of from the top. The brass wick carrier does not rust and clog the wick. Dampers top, cool handle.

Aluminum metal window frames that heat cannot tarnish. Japan or nickel finish. Various styles and finishes.

BIG EXCURSION ON THE RIVER

President Taft and Party On the Great River.

FROWNS AT THE PORK BARREL

President is Against the Usual Pork
Barrel Methods of Distributing
Money for Waterway Improvement
—A Grand and Impressive Sight as the Long Line of Steamers Heads
Down the Mississippi.

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 26.—The president's party stops here and at Hickman today on its way to Memphis. The president was the guest of the Business Men's association of St. Louis at a big luncheon at the Planters hotel yesterday, and in the afternoon he went to East St. Louis, where, with Vice-President Sherman and Speaker Cannon, he took part in the dedication of the new federal building. It was 5 o'clock when the president's boat swung out into the river and the mile long line of boats, all of them gayly decorated, dropped in behind and started the 1,200 mile trip down the Mississippi river to the tooting of whistles and to the cheers of thousands. Fifteen big Mississippi river steamboats, bearing a notable escort, swung out behind the little lighthouse tender Oleander, on which the president is quartered. Included in the escort are the vice-president of the United States, two cabinet members, twenty United States senators, four representatives of foreign nations, the speaker of the house of representatives, with 176 of his fellow-congressmen, and hundreds of prominent business men of the middle west. It is the greatest show that was ever pulled off in an effort to push legislation through congress. The excursion is under the auspices of the Lakes to the Gulf Deep Waterways association, and is to end at the annual convention of the association in New Orleans.

The president is accompanied on the Oleander only by his secretary and the secret service guard. He is scheduled to make eight speeches on the trip down the river, but he will have to spare his voice if he expects to speak on the last lap of his trip. There was some doubt when he arrived in St. Louis whether he would be able to talk at all to the Missouri folks. By having his throat stimulated just before he entered the Coliseum meeting, at St. Louis, however, the president was able to make himself heard by about half of the big audience.

The meeting at the Coliseum was the big one of the day. Mr. Taft addressed an audience of 10,000. Here is what he had to say of the pork barrel politics:

"We have spent a great deal of money on waterways. I do not think it has been spent as much to a good purpose as it would have been had we adopted some other theory, and some other method, but I am not here to criticize that. I do think that we have now reached a time in the history of the development of our waterways when a new method ought to be adopted. I would like to clear away a good many suppositions that I am afraid have lodged in some minds. This matter of waterways improvements by irrigation of the arid and sub-arid land and of the conservation of our resources is not for the purpose of distributing pork to every part of the country. Every measure that is to be taken and adopted must be on the ground that it is useful to the country at large and not on the ground that it is going to send congressmen back to congress, or on the ground that it is going to make a certain part of the country during the expenditure of that money prosperous. If that principle and the one which I deprecate is to obtain, I am in favor of going along the same old way we have gone before.

"Now there is a proposition that we issue a million dollars of bonds for a waterway and then that we just apportion part to the Mississippi and part to the Atlantic, a part to the Missouri and a part to the Ohio. I am opposed to it. I am opposed to it because it not only smells of the pork barrel, but it will be the pork barrel itself. Let every project stand on its own bottom, let it prove itself by means of its friends and by means of those who know whether it is profitable or not, and then enter on it, but do not let us embark on a plan that will reflect no credit on our business common sense."

Testimony for Defense Begun.
Connersville, Ind., Oct. 26.—The state has rested in the Wilson murder case after introducing the testimony of physicians and character witnesses. It is thought the state has a stronger case than previously against Wilson on account of the letters proved to have been written by the alleged murderer. The defense has begun its introduction of evidence.

CRUEL MURDERER TELLS ABOUT IT

Otto Mueller Has Confessed to Killing Annie Luther.

LEFT HER BODY IN THE WOODS

Mysterious Finding of a Skeleton in the Long Island Woods Is Now Explained by Recital of Cruel Act by the Perpetrator.

New York, Oct. 26.—Otto Mueller, who was arrested at Astoria, L. I., on Sunday night for the murder of Annie Luther, whose skeleton was found a week ago last Sunday night in the woods near Islip, L. I., has confessed that he shot Annie Luther in the woods near Bay Shore on April 9, 1908.

"I told Annie Luther," confessed Mueller, "out at Bay Shore that I was married and had a wife and two children, and that I must leave her and go back to my wife. I had taken her down to Bay Shore to show her some property. She screamed and ran after me. She kissed me and pulled me back. I shot her then. I did not look at her after that, and I don't remember whether I shot her more than once. I left her in the woods after I shot her and I went over to the Islip station and came home. I threw the revolver out of the car window on the way home."

For just a little more than a year and a half from the Sunday that Mueller shot Annie Luther, he and his wife, Annie Merger, and their two children have lived in the frame house in Astoria. Nothing seemed to bother Mueller—or Gebhardt, as his wife knew him—except that he seemed to be "money mad."

One night, about the time Annie Luther was murdered by Mueller, he came to Astoria from his work at the piano factory and called excitedly for his wife, who was upstairs. "We must change our name to White," he said, "and we must go away. The police are looking for me." His wife asked him what he had done, but he would not go into details. After a night's sleep he seemed to have got his nerve back and little was heard after that about changing the name or about going away.

Mueller has not been worried during the last year and a half, at least not until last Tuesday night. Then, on his home-coming—it was the day that the story of the finding of Annie's skeleton was published—Mueller sat around moodily.

On Friday last he shaved his moustache and announced to his wife that they had better pack up and move to Monticello, N. Y. He wanted to be alone, he said; people were bothering him.

After the confession he sank back into the chair weakly. He was brought to the police court and charged with homicide. Magistrate Dooley promptly turned him over to the Suffolk county authorities. A big crowd met the train at the Islip station and the local business men even closed their stores to be on hand to see the prisoner arrive.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrah. Hall's Catarrah Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrah being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrah Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for our list of testimonials.

FAIL TO FIND CLUE

Police at Indianapolis Puzzled Over
Dynamite Outrage.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—No clue has been found that will lead to the identity of the perpetrators of the several dynamite outrages, when miscreants directed their work to damage structures owned or being built by Albert von Spreckelsen, a general contractor. The outrages are supposed to be the result of labor troubles, caused by the employment of nonunion workmen by the contractor. The following damage was done by the dynamiters:

Von Spreckelsen's planing mill, North street and Highland avenue, damaged to the extent of about $1,000. A barn in the rear of Von Spreckelsen's residence at 1229 East Michigan street, destroyed with the contents, including two horses, two automobiles and vehicles. Loss about $5,000.

A pressed brick and cement building, which Von Spreckelsen is constructing at 29 Whittier place, Irvington, to be used as an exchange building by the Central Union telephone company. Loss about $2,000. The building was almost finished.

A public library building at Ohio and Mount streets, in course of construction by Von Spreckelsen. Loss about $1,000.

Mr. F. G. Fritz, Oneonta, N. Y., writes: "My little girl was greatly benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative, and I think it is the best remedy for constipation and liver trouble." Foley's Orino Laxative is mild, pleasant and effective, and cures habitual constipation. Sold by all druggists.

HUSBAND SHOTS WIFE IN RAGE

Refusal to Leave Stage Had Fatal Result.

TRAGEDY AT RAILWAY STATION

Evelyn Howard Had Supported Herself While Her Husband, William Short, Was in Prison—She Refused to Leave the Stage and Was About to Join Her Company When the Shooting Occurred.

Washington, Oct. 25.—A chorus girl with the "Motor Girl" company, Mrs. Evelyn Short, whose stage name is Evelyn Howard, was shot three times by her husband, Wm. Short of New York, a paroled convict, at the union station in this city. Short then turned the pistol on himself, sending a bullet through his right temple and died about half an hour later at the Casualty hospital. Mrs. Short is at the same hospital with three bullets in her left side, one just under the shoulder blade and the other two 5 or 6 inches below. The physicians said there was a good chance for recovery.

The shooting was the culmination of a married life filled with trouble. The couple were married about seven years ago. Short, who was a teller in a New York bank, was found short in his accounts a year later. He fled and was captured and sentenced to six years in Sing Sing. While he was in prison their only child, a boy, died.

Mrs. Short, to support herself and her mother and to send her husband many little things not furnished to convicts, went on the stage as a chorus girl. When Short was released his wife lived with him for a while, but left him and returned to the stage. The shooting followed a series of quarrels which the couple have had since Friday, when Short came here and endeavored to have his wife leave the stage and return to New York. Yesterday she started for the station to go to Pittsburg. With her in a cab were her husband and Miss Caldwell, another member of the company. According to Miss Caldwell, Short acted in an ugly way toward his wife and several times took hold of her roughly. Mrs. Short threatened to scream. Short told her if she screamed he would make her sorry. Short kept insisting that his wife return to New York, but she declined and said she was going to Pittsburg with the company. When the station was reached, Miss Caldwell said, the husband was infuriated and Mrs. Short sprang out of the cab terrified. Her husband followed and both stumbled. Both regained their feet and Mrs. Short, who had evidently caught a glimpse of the pistol, ran down the portico screaming. Short followed and called for her to stop. She half turned and cried out, "Don't shoot me, Will, please don't!"

Short fired and she sank to the pavement. Short came up and, standing over her, fired two shots more into her body. Short then placed the weapon to his right temple, pulled the trigger and fell beside his wife.

Mrs. Short, who did not lose consciousness, struggled weakly to her feet. She was helped to a taxicab and taken to the hospital. While the surgeons were dressing her wounds, she inquired about the condition of her husband and said she hoped he would get well.

Mrs. Short is 24 years old and good looking. She has chestnut hair, very dark eyes and regular features. Short was about 34 years old, tall with dark hair and eyes.

Sentence Commuted.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The sentence of Thomas W. Harvey, who was convicted of complicity in wrecking the Enterprise National bank of Pittsburg, Pa., and is serving a seven-year term of imprisonment, was commuted to three years by President Taft. The prisoner was accused of manipulating the books and making false entries. He fought the sentence to the legal extremities and began his sentence more than a year ago.

McCarren's Funeral Today.

New York, Oct. 26.—The funeral of the late Senator P. H. McCarren was held today. Services were held in the church of St. Vincent de Paul, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Thomas Carroll. There was a long procession, including the police department and various fraternal organizations, and vast crowds thronged the sidewalks and the church.

Both Boys Saved.

Louis Boon, a leading merchant of Norway, Mich., writes: "Three bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar absolutely cured my boy of a severe cough, and a neighbor's boy, who was so ill with a cold that the doctors gave him up, was cured by taking Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold by all druggists."

Jesse Coe's Betrayer in Jail.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—Claude Andrews, the negro betrayer of Jesse Coe, who was lured to a patch of woods and then shot by Kentucky sheriffs for the murder of an Indianapolis policeman, is being held by the police on a charge of attempted murder. Andrews is accused of having struck William Plumblee, a negro, twice on the head with a hatchet Sunday afternoon.
